DREAMSCAPE NETWORKS ADDS A DEDICATED WORDPRESS HOSTING PLATFORM

Dreamscape Networks Limited (ASX:DN8) is pleased to announce it has added managed WordPress Hosting to its portfolio of hosting products.

A leading online solutions provider, Dreamscape Networks owns Australia's #1 domain brand Crazy Domains.

Managed WordPress Hosting is part of a broad and ever-expanding selection of essential products and services that enable businesses to build, grow, and manage their online presence.

Gavin Gibson, Executive Director and Chief Operations Officer of Dreamscape Networks, said: "Setting up an installation of WordPress can initially seem intimidating or challenging, so we have made the experience easier with our one-click installations on standard Web Hosting.

"While there is a lot more involved in maintaining, updating and keeping WordPress secure, this is where our managed WordPress Hosting provides peace of mind."

"By managing the set-up, configuration, maintenance and support we are helping customers get back to focusing on their business, while the essentials are taken care of in the background," Gibson said.

Launched in 2003, WordPress started life as just a simple blogging system, and has since gone on to become a full content management system, with thousands of plugins, widgets and themes available.

WordPress isn't only for bloggers, with 27% of the world wide web already using WordPress, including some of the biggest news sites online – including TechCrunch, BBC America, Vogue, and Quartz.

Small businesses and entrepreneurs can set up a website using WordPress hosting quickly and easily, and take advantage of additional features including DDoS protection and Server optimisation.

The WordPress Hosting product offers three plans: Economy, Premium and Ultimate. Customers can choose a specific period to enjoy their selected plan, from one to five years. Each plan comes with different SSD storage, starting from 10GB to 50GB.

Dreamscape Networks is committed to best-in-world service, providing simple, innovative and affordable online solutions that help businesses to take great steps forward.
